TEACHING

I believe music education should be both structured and joyful.

With experience teaching students ages 5–12, I focus on building strong foundations while nurturing curiosity, confidence, and a love for music.

ABOUT

Kuan-Pei Chen is a Taiwanese violinist and educator currently pursuing her Doctor of Musical Arts at Boston University under the guidance of Bayla Keyes. A versatile performer, she was recently named the winner of the 2026 Boston University Bach Competition, which concluded with a featured performance at Boston University's Concert Hall.

Since 2022, Ms. Chen has been a member of the Boston Philharmonic Orchestra, performing in world-renowned venues such as Carnegie Hall and Boston's Symphony Hall. Her ensemble experience includes the Green Mountain Chamber Music Festival in 2022 and 2023, supported by scholarships, along with a fellowship with the National Repertory Orchestra in 2024.

Deeply committed to music education, Ms. Chen has served as a Graduate Teaching Assistant at Boston University since 2024, where she teaches undergraduate Aural Skills. She also provides violin instruction to non-music majors at the university and maintains a studio for students ages 5–11. Her teaching approach is informed by her minor in Children's Bilingual Education, which she completed during her undergraduate studies.

Ms. Chen holds a Master's Degree from Boston University. She also holds a Bachelor of Music from National Taiwan Normal University, where she studied with Yi-Tsao Wang. She began her violin studies at age six and was previously mentored by Xiao-Fang Huang and Hui-Wen Yang.
